

Grant Opportunities & News You Can Use

Hello, faculty,

Welcome back to the new semester! I hope everything is going reasonably well and you had some time to relax.

We are back with our monthly Grant Opportunities newsletter. For our Featured Funder this month we are profiling the Whiting Foundation. For our Sage Advice column, we walk you through the difference in the NSF between a Letter of Collaboration and a Letter of Support.

After Sage Advice, we have a few news stories, including news of a possible amnesty for academics who failed to report foreign ties.

We also have brief profiles of upcoming opportunities, including NEH Fellowships, which are coming due April 14, 2021. After that, we have a calendar of opportunities coming due in the next six months.

The next Internal Grant deadline is March 9, for Presidential Research Awards and nominations for Gildersleeve Visiting Professorships, which “bring visiting scholars, preferably women from abroad, to the Barnard campus.”

As always, if you need assistance finding grants or beginning an application, please feel free to email any of the members of the Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research team. We love to hear from you!

Featured Funders

The Whiting Foundation

I'm a little bit sheepish not to have any scandals to relate today, but, so far as I can tell, the fortune behind the subject of today's column, The Whiting Foundation, was acquired through completely straightforward means. No kidnappings, no fun inventions to disperse clouds of acid, no pioneering feminists establishing the first food safety laws in the country—just inherited wealth and a few well-chosen investments funneled into a foundation through some generous contributions before and after death.

The Whiting in question was Flora Ettlinger Whiting, the daughter of Louis E. Ettlinger (1845-1927), a German immigrant who came to American in 1866 and formed a lithography firm called Schumacher & Ettlinger. Schumacher & Ettlinger made prints for cigar boxes and trading cards that still show up today in museums and libraries. Its prints largely consist of treacly images of upper middle class women with impossibly tiny waists, swathed in furs or clutching parasols like muskets, always while wearing elaborate hats. Schumacher and Ettlinger eventually merged with the New American Lithographic Company in 1892, and Ettlinger spent his later years working as director of a publishing firm and chairman of the Persian Rug Manufactory. By the time he died, he was a wealthy man.

Flora was born in 1878 and all the information out there agrees that she started from an early age to collect antiques. By all accounts, she was exceptionally gifted at spotting high-quality pieces and helped organize one of the early exhibitions of American antiques, working alongside the wives of Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, William Taft, Calvin Coolidge and Woodrow Wilson. She went on to become one of the founding members of the Friends of the American Wing of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, where much of her collection resides today.

Her fortune came from a combination of inheritance, a wealthy marriage to the President of the Persian Rug Manufactory, where her father had been chairman, and a few timely investments in the company that would become IBM, back in the early days when it primarily made cash registers. Upon her death in 1971, her fortune was valued at \$25 million, much of which was left to the Whiting Foundation.

Today the Whiting Foundation supports artists, endangered cultural artifacts, and scholars.

“The Whiting Creative Nonfiction Grant of $40,000 will be awarded to as many as eight writers in the process of completing a book-length work of deeply researched and imaginatively composed nonfiction for a general readership.” Deadline: TBA.

“The Whiting Public Engagement Seed Grant of up to $10,000 supports projects at a somewhat earlier stage of development than the Fellowship, before the nominee has been able to establish a specific track record of success for the proposed public-facing work.” Deadline: June 14, 2021.

“The Whiting Public Engagement Fellowship of $50,000 is for public-facing projects far enough along in development or execution that the nominee can present compelling, specific evidence that they will successfully engage the intended public.” Deadline: June 14, 2021.

Both of the Public Engagement Fellowships are meant for early-career Humanities faculty. Please contact our office if you would like to talk about the nomination process for either Public Engagement grant.

Sage Advice

Reference Letters vs. Letters of Support in NSF Applications

Back when I first took over the Newsletter from the inimitable Kari Steeves, I ran a column on the difference between a reference letter and a letter of support. That column was based on NIH recommendations and included helpful tips, such as not to add unnecessary letters, since “Unnecessary letters can also limit the pool of expert peer reviewers. Due to potential conflicts of interest, anyone who writes a letter may not review your application. You could un-intentionally eliminate the scientists who would have been your best supporters.” For today’s column, I want to talk about a similar issue – the difference in NSF applications between a letter of collaboration and a letter of support.

Letters of collaboration. There are two different types of collaboration. There are funded collaborations, in which “investigators from two or more organizations wish to collaborate on a unified research project.” Funded collaborations don’t need letters of collaboration.

There are unfunded collaborations, which the NSF describes as, “Any substantial collaboration with individuals not included in the budget.” Unfunded collaborators “should be described in the Facilities, Equipment and Other Resources section of the proposal (see Chapter II.C.2.i) and documented in a letter of collaboration from each collaborator.”

Letters of collaboration have a specific form. NSF decided a few years ago that the absence of guidelines inadvertently gave an unfair advantage to schools with more time and resources to craft elaborate letters and so decided to standardize the format.

"If the proposal submitted by Dr. [insert the full name of the Principal Investigator] entitled [insert the proposal title] is selected for funding by NSF, it is my intent to collaborate and/or commit resources as detailed in the Project Description or the Facilities, Equipment and Other Resources section of the proposal."

And that’s it! Your collaborator has to sign the letter, but you cannot add anything else to the letter.

Letters of support, by contrast, are not a standard part of NSF applications and are defined by the NSF as follows. “A letter of support is typically from a key stakeholder such as an organization, collaborator or Congressional Representative, and is used to convey a sense of enthusiasm for the project and/or to highlight the qualifications of the PI or co-PI. A letter of support submitted in response to a program solicitation requirement must be unique to the specific proposal submitted and cannot be altered without the author’s explicit prior approval. Proposals that contain letters of support not authorized by the program solicitation may be returned without review.”

The NSF has a helpful chart breaking down the difference, reproduced below.

	Letter of Collaboration	Letter of Support
Optional or Required?	May be submitted with any proposal	May only be submitted if required by the program or solicitation
Impact on proposal processing?	Improper letters may be removed from the proposal; however, the proposal will still be accepted	Inclusion when not required may cause the proposal to be returned without review
Impact on proposal length?	Neither counts against the 15-page limit

If all else fails, ask us!

Enhancing Diversity at NIH-Funded Conferences

Posted on January 22, 2021 by Mike Lauer

“At NIH, we have and continue to focus not just on gender equity but on ensuring greater diversity in all aspects of the biomedical workforce. This means, that along with women, members of racial and/or ethnic minority groups, people with disabilities, and those from disadvantaged backgrounds are also included. To help ensure that the nation remains a global leader in scientific discovery and innovation, NIH needs the richness and breadth of varied perspectives that comes from having a pool of highly talented scientists from diverse backgrounds.

“In that spirit, today we released a guide notice (NOT-OD-21-053) that updates guidance for NIH R13/U13 Conference Grant applicants and recipients.” <<more>>

Report finds holes in U.S. policies on foreign influence in research

From Science by Jeffrey Mervis. Posted on December 28, 2020

“A new report by a congressional watchdog says U.S. agencies need to flesh out and clarify their policies for monitoring the foreign ties of the researchers they fund.

“The report, by the Government Accountability Office (GAO), is likely to spur efforts in Congress aimed at preventing China and other nations from using funding and other connections to gain improper access to research funded by the U.S. government. But at least one of the agencies under scrutiny—the National Science Foundation (NSF)—is pushing back on the idea that its policies are lax. It is warning that tougher rules could hinder its ability to fund the best science.”

DOJ Considers Amnesty for Foreign Funding Disclosures

From Inside Higher Ed by Elizabeth Redden. Posted on January 25, 2021

“Officials at the Department of Justice are considering a proposed amnesty program through which academics could disclose past foreign funding without fear of punishment, The Wall Street Journal reported. Discussion of such an amnesty program comes in the context of a crackdown on researchers accused of hiding funding or affiliations involving Chinese sources. The Justice Department has brought more than a dozen criminal cases since mid-2019 against academics accused of lying about Chinese government funding or affiliations with the Chinese military, with some of those cases resulting in guilty pleas.” <<more>>

A Scientist is Arrested, and Academics Push Back

From The New York Times by Ellen Barry. Posted on January 26, 2021

“Police officers that morning had arrested Gang Chen, a professor of mechanical engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, on suspicion of hiding affiliations with Chinese government institutions in order to secure $19 million in U.S. federal grants.

“Dr. Chen’s prosecution was the latest in the Justice Department’s two-year-old China Initiative, which aims to root out research scientists passing sensitive technology to China...

“In the 10 days since Dr. Chen’s arrest, his colleagues have publicly protested, arguing that prosecutors have overreached, blurring the line between disclosure violations and more serious crimes, like espionage or intellectual property theft.” <<more>>
