

Grant Opportunities & News You Can Use

Hello faculty,

Welcome to the July 2023 edition of the IFSR newsletter. Liane, Brian, and Baby Ian are doing well. (Thanks for all of your inquiries and well wishes!) Once again, with Liane on leave, the rest of the IFSR team is pitching in to bring you this month’s news from the grants world.

This month we have a Featured Funder column highlighting the changes being proposed at NSF via the 2024 Proposal and Award Policies and Procedures Guide (PAPPG). For Sage Advice, we have a guest columnist, our Development and Alumnae Relations colleague Joanna Broughton '95, who provides some guidance on how to prepare for events with alumnae and donors. The History of American Philanthropy column is on hold until Liane’s return.

We have news stories and brief thumbnails of opportunities coming due in September. And in the back, we have six months’ worth of deadlines. (As always, check the website! Some of the later deadlines have not yet been released.)

Office Hours for this month are coming up this Friday, August 4 at 10 AM.

Featured Funder/Sage Advice

Featured Funder: NSF — Preview of 2024 Proposal and Award Policies and Procedures Guide (PAPPG)

Guest Columnist: Mark Godwin

The National Science Foundation hosted its Spring 2023 Virtual Grants Conference in June. Among the many timely and useful sessions (all of which are archived on the website for future viewing), the most valuable one for me was the Proposal and Award Policy Update. This session previewed many of the new requirements coming with the 2024 version of the Proposal and Award Policies and Procedures Guide (PAPPG), which is online for review in draft form.

Some of the major changes being proposed:

- Going forward, Principal Investigators will need to certify that they are NOT party to any malign foreign talent identification program. This certification will be required as part of the Biosketch and Current and Pending Support (CPS) documents.
- Mentoring plans will be required for graduate students (as well as post-doctoral researchers) being supported on NSF grants. The mentoring plan must be included as an attachment to the proposal, and must be certified as part of the annual RPPR.
- NSF is working to harmonize Biosketch requirements across federal agencies. As a result, the synergistic activities section (unique to NSF) will be moving from the Biosketch and into a separate attachment.
- Institutions will be required to disclose gifts and contracts above a certain threshold from foreign sources.

The 2024 PAPPG is still being finalized, after the draft version went through a period of public comment. Stay tuned to see how many of these changes make it into the final version of the PAPPG, due out this fall

Editor's Note: The Institutional Funding and Sponsored Research team is part of Development and Alumnae Relations at Barnard. While we seek funds from federal agencies, foundations, and corporations, our colleagues raise funds from alums, parents, and friends to the College. Since Liane is on leave, we've invited our colleague and Barnard alumna, Joanna Broughton, to share more about her role and some advice for working with individual fundraisers. They may have a donor interested in your work!

I am the Director of Prospect Development at Barnard College. My team supports Barnard's fundraising efforts by conducting research on the College's current and prospective donors; coordinating prospect management and tracking; and analyzing, storing, and disseminating donor and alumnae data.

Sage Advice

Faculty are essential strategic partners to the Prospect Development team. You can help us build the donor pipeline by engaging in conversations with alumnae. Engaged alumnae are ready donors! Grateful alumnae are generous donors!

Development and Alumnae Relations host a range of events each year, including the Annual Gala, Reunion, and Leadership Assembly. We also coordinate small, intimate events in private homes. Faculty are often invited to connect with guests and share more about their research, teaching, and experience at Barnard. Your presence at special events adds stimulating conversation and star power.

Suppose you have been invited to a development and alumnae relations event and plan to attend. Now what?

Arrive prepared

Know the name of your host and the event location. Familiarize yourself with the host's relationship with the College. You can find this information in the briefing memos prepared by our team and shared with you in advance.

Introduce yourself

Share your name, your academic discipline, and your tenure with guests. Convey the important work you do at Barnard.

Ask questions

Get to know the people around you. Ask them about themselves, their hobbies, and their favorite books. Connect over shared interests. Encourage them to talk about employment, business affiliations, family, travel, recreational and vacation preferences, pastimes, philanthropic interests and plans, and what interests them in higher education and/or attracts them to Barnard's mission.

Report back

Let your development colleagues know about any information you learned during the event. Share details that might be relevant to fundraising.

Still feeling uneasy? We're here to help! Reach out to me before your event and I can make sure you have the tools you need to contribute to our fundraising efforts. Together we can grow philanthropic support for Barnard!

Responsible and Ethical Conduct of Research: Updated Barnard Policy

Barnard has updated its policy on the Responsible and Ethical Conduct of Research (RECR), in order to meet new NSF standards requiring that all NSF-supported senior personnel receive training in RECR. (Previously, training was required only for undergraduates, graduate students, and post-doctoral researchers.)

The updated Barnard policy, which you can find here, goes into effect on July 31, 2023, and will cover senior personnel on new awards received from NSF on or after that date. (NIH and other federal agencies are not yet requiring training for senior personnel.) Importantly, the new requirement is not retroactive; senior personnel on existing NSF awards are not covered.

Training will be delivered online via CITI, which has developed a course in RECR for faculty and senior personnel. Mark Godwin and Pamela Tuffley in the Sponsored Research Department will be in touch with more explicit instructions for those who are required to receive training.

In the meantime, please contact Mark Godwin with any questions.

NSF Project Report Enhancements for Datasets and Research Materials

Dear Colleague Letter, received via email July 26, 2023.

“Dear Colleagues,
Effective July 24, 2023, the National Science Foundation (NSF) made enhancements to the Project Reporting System in Research.gov to enable datasets and research materials to be entered as distinct product types that are managed and reviewed separately. This change improves project report data quality by listing each product type resulting from NSF funded research as a separate entry rather than a combined listing of multiple product types. Other changes include improved system messaging and an updated user interface to provide a more seamless look and feel for NSF award recipients. There are no changes to NSF’s Public Access policy or project reporting requirements.

An updated How to Add Datasets to the NSF-PAR and NSF In-progress Project Reports guide and updated How to Remove Datasets from the NSF-PAR and In-progress Project Reports guide will be available on the Research.gov About Public Access page. Visit the NSF Public Access Initiative page for more information including the NSF Public Access Plan 2.0 - Ensuring Open, Immediate and Equitable Access to National Science Foundation Funded Research released earlier this year.

Questions? If you have IT system-related questions, please contact the NSF Help Desk at 1-800-381-1532 (7:00 AM - 9:00 PM ET; Monday - Friday except federal holidays) or via rgov@nsf.gov. Policy-related questions should be directed to policy@nsf.gov.

Regards,
National Science Foundation”

Overview

The Alan T. Waterman Award recognizes an outstanding young researcher in any field of science or engineering supported by the U.S. National Science Foundation.

The annual award is the nation's highest honor for early-career scientists and engineers. In addition to a medal, the awardee receives a grant of $1,000,000 over a five-year period for scientific research or advanced study in the science and engineering disciplines supported by the National Science Foundation at the institution of their choice. Disciplines supported by the NSF include the biological sciences, computer and information science and engineering, engineering, geosciences, mathematical and physical sciences, social, behavioral and economic sciences, and research on STEM education.

Congress established the award in August 1975 to mark NSF's 25th anniversary and to honor the agency's first director.” <<more>>

Congressional spending panels cruel to NIH, kinder to NSF

From Science, by Jeffrey Mervis and Jocelyn Kaiser. Posted July 14, 2023.

“Congressional spending panels delivered sharply different messages this week to the two biggest U.S. federal research agencies as lawmakers began to get serious about passing a federal budget for the 2024 fiscal year that begins on 1 October.

Panels in the House of Representatives and Senate agreed to give the National Science Foundation (NSF) more money than many research advocates had expected given Republican demands to curtail overall federal spending. In contrast, the much larger National Institutes of Health (NIH) took a beating in the Republican-controlled House.

A House panel’s proposed 5.9% reduction to NIH’s current $47.4 billion budget would represent a decline of $2.8 billion and lead to “glaring cuts to vital research,” warns the biomedical advocacy group Research!America. Funding for the Advanced Research Projects Agency for Health, created last year and a priority of President Joe Biden’s administration, would fall from $1.5 billion to $500 million in 2024 under the House plan. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention would see its budget decline by 17%, to $7.6 billion.”

NIH Mandate That Foreign Partners to U.S. Scientists Regularly Submit All Data Stirs Outcry:

From Science, by Jocelyn Kaiser. Posted June 13, 2023.

“Many U.S. biomedical researchers and their collaborators abroad are reacting with alarm to a new National Institutes of Health requirement that foreign groups send their NIH partners copies of their lab notebooks and other raw data at least every few months. It’s “crazy,” says Brazilian researcher Mauro Teixeira, who gets NIH funding through a U.S. university for a mosquito-borne disease study.

The 19 May policy change, sparked by concerns about U.S.-funded virology research in China, could impose a costly new paperwork burden on all NIH grants with foreign partners, from lab studies to clinical trials, scientists and a biomedical research advocacy group say. Currently, collaborators only share results used in publications and keep underlying data such as lab notebooks within their institutions.” <<more>>

Federal Government Seeks Citizen Scientists:

From Nextgov/FCW by John Breeden II. Posted June 30, 2023.

“From the outside, the federal government is sometimes viewed like a giant machine or even an unknowable entity. It works extremely effectively but can also seem like a black box, operating out of sight and away from the eyes of non-government employees. While that can be true, there are also places where the government touches everyday citizens and some-

Science Funding Agencies Say No to Using AI for Peer Review:

From Science, by Jocelyn Kaiser. Posted July 14, 2023.

“Neuroscientist Greg Siegle was at a conference in early April when he heard something he found “very scary.” Another scientist was gushing that ChatGPT, the artificial intelligence (AI) tool released in November 2022, had quickly become indispensable for drafting critiques of the thick research proposals he had to wade through as a peer reviewer for the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Other listeners nodded, saying they saw ChatGPT as a major time saver: Drafting a review might entail just pasting parts of a proposal, such as the abstract, aims, and research strategy, into the AI and asking it to evaluate the information.

NIH and other funding agencies, however, are putting the kibosh on the approach. On 23 June, NIH banned the use of online generative AI tools like ChatGPT “for analyzing and formulating peer-review critiques”—likely spurred in part by a letter from Siegle, who is at the University of Pittsburgh, and colleagues. After the conference they warned the agency that allowing ChatGPT to write grant reviews is “a dangerous precedent.” In a similar move, the Australian Research Council (ARC) on 7 July banned generative AI for peer review after learning of reviews apparently written by ChatGPT.” <<more>>

Association for Asian Studies

First Book Subvention Program

Deadline: September 1

“The AAS administers a program for AAS-member authors who require subventions to ensure publication of their first books. A total of $15,000 in subventions will be awarded each year, with individual awards ranging from $1,000 up to a maximum of $3,000. Funded through the AAS Development Fund, AAS First Book Subventions will be awarded on a competitive basis to AAS-member first-time book authors who have already secured provisional contracts from established academic presses.” <<link>>

Chiang Ching-Kuo Foundation for International Scholarly Exchange

Publication Subsidies

Deadline: September 15

“Academic publishers or full-time faculty may apply for subsidies for the publication of scholarly works related to the goals of the Foundation. The publication may be in the form of a book or a monograph. Applications will be accepted for completed book manuscripts, but not for books in a series. Priority will be given to first book projects by junior scholars. Publication subsidies usually range between $5,000 to $10,000.” <<link>>

Wilson Center

George F. Kennan Fellowship

Deadline: September 30

“The George F. Kennan Fellowships were established in 2015 with the goal of supporting experts from diverse, policy-oriented sectors such as media, business, local government, law, civil society, and academia to examine important political, social, economic, cultural, and historical issues in Russia, Ukraine, and the region. Among the aims of the new fellowships are to build bridges between traditional academia and the policy world, as well as to maintain and increase collaboration among researchers from Russia, Ukraine, the U.S., and beyond. The fellowships are funded by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York.” <<link>>

American Chemical Society

New Directions Grants

Deadline: September 8

“The goals of the American Chemical Society Petroleum Research Fund are:

- To support fundamental research in the petroleum field, and
- To develop the next generation of engineers and scientists through support of advanced scientific education.

The New Directions Grants Program aims to stimulate a new direction of research for established faculty, and to support the careers

National Science Foundation CISE Community Research Infrastructure

Deadline: September 8

“This research infrastructure will specifically support diverse communities of CISE researchers pursuing focused research agendas in computer and information science and engineering. This support involves developing the accompanying user services and engagement needed to attract, nurture, and grow a robust research community that is actively involved in determining directions for the infrastructure, as well as management of the infrastructure.” <<link>>

The Eppley Foundation for Research Grants

Deadline: September 15

“The Eppley Foundation for Research was incorporated in 1947 for the purpose of ‘increasing knowledge in pure or applied science...in chemistry, physics and biology through study, research and publication.’ The Foundation does not support work in the social sciences, education or computer science, and only rarely funds research into diseases that have considerable financial support available, such as AIDS, diabetes, cancer and heart disease. Particular areas of interest include innovative medical investigations, climate change, whole ecosystem studies, as well as research on single species if they are of particular significance in their environments, in the U.S. and abroad.” <<link>>

Alfred P. Sloan Foundation Sloed Research Fellowships

Deadline: September 15

“The Sloan Research Fellowships seek to stimulate fundamental research by early-career scientists and scholars of outstanding promise. These two-year, $75,000 fellowships are awarded yearly to early career researchers in recognition of distinguished performance and a unique potential to make substantial contributions to their field.” <<link>>
