

Grant Opportunities & News You Can Use

Hello faculty,

Summer has flown by and we hope it was a rejuvenating one for you. The IFSR team (a.k.a., the grants office) is excited to welcome you back to campus for the fall semester.

We are also delighted to introduce to you our new colleague, Tashiana Lipscomb, who will be taking over the position of Manager, IFSR, replacing Liane, who has been most deservedly promoted to Associate Director, IFSR, (and who is also currently on parental leave). Tashi comes to us from Barnard's Residential Life & Housing office where she was a Community Director, so she already knows the College well. Prior to her role at Barnard, Tashi worked as a graduate student coordinator for NYU's Institute of Public Knowledge, Race and Public Space Working Group and as a research analyst at Beyond Measure Coaching and Consulting. She is pursuing a PhD in Sociology of Education at NYU.

This month we have a Featured Funder column introducing Abdul Latif Jameel Poverty Action Lab or J-PAL. For Sage Advice, we take a trip down memory lane with referrals for all to past newsletters that covered ways we in the grants office can help you. The History of American Philanthropy column is on hold until Liane's return.

We have news stories and brief thumbnails of opportunities coming due in September. And in the back, we have six months' worth of deadlines. (As always, check the website! Some of the later deadlines have not yet been updated by the sponsor.)

Please join us Friday, September 8, at 10 AM for open office hours:

The Abdul Latif Jameel Poverty Action Lab (J-PAL)

The Poverty Action Lab was founded in 2003 at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) by professors Abhijit Banerjee, Esther Duflo, and Sendhil Mullainathan. The three set out with the goal of transforming how the world approaches the challenges of global poverty, most notably by encouraging fellow researchers to divide the issue of poverty into smaller, more manageable, questions. Professors Banerjee and Duflo share a 2019 Nobel Prize in Economics for their work, while Professor Sendhil Mullainathan is a recipient of the MacArthur “Genius Grant.”

In 2005, the lab partnered with Community Jameel, an independent, global organization advancing science to help communities thrive in a rapidly changing world. Following the partnership, the lab was renamed the Abdul Latif Jameel Poverty Action Lab (J-PAL) in honor of the late Abdul Latif Jameel, the father of MIT alumnus, Mohammed Jameel KBE, who founded Community Jameel and continues to be chairman.

J-PAL offers two tracks for faculty and research to work with the lab: Invited and Affiliate Researcher. Affiliates are professors at varying universities who set their own research agendas, raise funds to support their evaluations, and work with J-PAL staff on research, policy outreach, and training. New affiliates can only be nominated by current affiliates. The Executive Committee of the Board of Directors of J-PAL reviews these nominations once a year with the deadline of May 1st. Visit here to learn more about the affiliate program.

Invited researchers have more outlined funding opportunities for projects. Invited researchers typically have less experience carrying out randomized evaluations than affiliates and are invited to a specific J-PAL initiative while still working at their respective institutions. The invited researcher track seems like a great opportunity for early career faculty looking to gain more experience and financial support with projects involving randomized evaluations.

This year, J-PAL piloted a self-nomination form process that closed in June and selected 20 self-nominated Invited Researchers to partner with the lab. We expect J-PAL will continue this program in the coming years.

Once extended an invitation, Invited researchers to a J-PAL initiative are eligible to apply for funding from that initiative. Invited researchers to a J-PAL regional office are eligible to contract with that regional office to carry out field research.

Some of the J-PAL initiatives currently accepting RFPs include:

- Social Protection Initiative: Funds randomized evaluations of social protection programs in low- and middle-income countries and supports policy engagement to share insights from completed research (deadline September 1, 2023).
- The Science for Progress Initiative: Designed to catalyze scientific research on the scientific process (deadline December 31st, 2023).

Sage Advice: A Trip Down Sage Advice Lane

The beginning of a new academic year is always an opportunity for our office to highlight the resources we have available to faculty. We are here to help you accomplish your research and project goals, both inside and outside the classroom and lab. The Sponsored Research part of our team helps with individual research grants, while Institutional Funding is there for the curricular and co-curricular projects that span multiple faculty, departments, and centers, often involving faculty-staff collaboration. A new academic year is also a season when faculty may have more questions about how our office works and how to go about writing and applying for a grant. While we tailor our support to the individual faculty's needs, we've gathered together here a few Sage Advice columns from previous issues that respond to some of our most frequently asked questions among faculty.

What does your office do?

How the Barnard Sponsored Research Office Can Help (May 2020, updated from May 18, 2018)

"We regularly meet with faculty, as needed, to gain an understanding of research needs and goals. It's not necessary to wait until you have a fully formed proposal. We can begin with a brainstorming session."

What Can Institutional Funding Do for You? (July, 2020)

"If we know that you are looking, we can send opportunities. We are there to help develop and support projects you are already interested in pursuing."

What to expect when meeting with our office for the first time (April, 2021)

"I can also build a tailored research report for you that includes opportunities that might be helpful for you, their deadlines, descriptions, and lists of other similar funded projects."

When to Visit the Sponsored Research Office—A Timeline for Your Early Years (October 2020)

"We're happy to see you at any stage of your career. As a general rule of thumb, consider reach out 12-18 months before your anticipated leave to talk about your options."

Where should I start with my project?

Finding a "big idea" for a grant proposal (June 2018)

"... they noticed a quieting of regions of the brain immediately before inspired problem solving, what they call "the relaxation phase." "We must concentrate, but we must concentrate on letting the mind wander."

Write About What Annoys You (September, 2021)

"Asking yourself what you feel when you think about your work is a good way to hone in on what your project is and why you're doing it."

Is it better to apply for a project you've just started or have almost finished? (October, 2022)

"The good news is that funding agencies mostly don't care how far along you are in a project...They just want to promote good work and give scholars the support they need to push their scholarship forward."

What should I keep in mind when applying for a grant?

How to Tell If a Fellowship or Grant is a Good Fit (September, 2019)

"If a foundation has funded a colleague doing similar work, chances are they might fund you...With any luck, the funding organization has descriptions of the projects they have funded posted on its website."

What Makes a Good Community Partnership Proposal? (October, 2019)

"The key point is that the best community partnerships are bottom-up, not top-down."

Institutional Grants: What They Are and How You Can Get Involved (June, 2022)

"It's pretty unusual for early-career faculty to spend much time thinking about institutional projects, because you're normally (rightly!) focused on your research, but after tenure, you might find yourself with more bandwidth and interest."

NIH Application Instruction Updates – Data Management and Sharing (DMS) Costs

Issued by NIH, July 31, 2023

“This notice updates the NIH application instructions for submitting requests for Data Management and Sharing costs in a single line item. ... Effective for applications submitted for due dates on or after October 5, 2023, NIH will no longer require the use of the single DMS cost line item. NIH recognizes that DMS costs may be requested in many cost categories. Therefore, in line with our standard budget instructions, DMS costs must be requested in the appropriate cost category, e.g., personnel, equipment, supplies, and other expenses, following the instructions for the R&R Budget Form or PHS 398 Modular Budget Form, as applicable. While the single cost line item is no longer required, NIH will require applicants to specify estimated DMS cost details within the “Budget Justification” attachment of the R&R Budget Form or “Additional Narrative Justification” attachment of the PHS 398 Modular Budget Form, pursuant to the instructions.” <<more>>

Case Study in Research Integrity – Banned From Supervising, Can't Go in Lab, but No Impact on NIH Funded Research?

By Mike Lauer, Posted July 17, 2023

“We have seen rising numbers of allegations related to harassment, discrimination, and hostile work environments since 2018 (when we first started tracking them). In many cases, we successfully work with recipient institutions to put appropriate measures in place to address unsafe working environments. However, too often we hear from institutions that a PI has violated the institution’s policies and is no longer permitted to supervise students or staff, but there will be “no impact on NIH-funded work.” We have a problem with this response.” <<more>>

Addressing Rigor in Scientific Studies

By Devon C. Crawford, Posted August 14, 2023

“Science communication is rapidly evolving. The growing use of preprints and the sheer number of published studies make it increasingly difficult to determine which findings are worthy of attention. Not all scientific studies are created equal. Communicators need to discern which are reputable in order to know what to convey to their target audience. Inaccurate or untrustworthy information can have dire consequences, so it is important to understand how to assess whether studies have robust findings and how to communicate this to audiences.” <<more>>
